Achievement	Pgm. Svc. Exp.
Educational Institutions and Related Activities: Early Childhood Education - The YWCA's programs have been providing quality early childhood education for over 30 years. Since the 80's, our focus has been on meeting the needs of low-income Minneapolis families, especially families of color and children with special needs who are underserved in childcare. In 2007, 547 children ages 6 weeks to 11 years were served - 82% were children of color and 70% were from low-income families. The mission of the YWCA Early Childhood Education programs is to nurture children in partnership with their families and to prepare them for success in school by: 1) Helping each child reach his/her cognitive, emotional, and physical potential; 2) Promoting respect for diverse cultures, backgrounds, and abilities; and 3) Fostering community involvement and responsibility in children. From July 1, 2007 through June 30, 2008 our four centers offered year-round, full-time education and care, Monday - Friday to children - 6 weeks through school-age. Three of the childcare centers (Downtown, Phillips, and Midtown) are nationally accredited by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC), the fourth center at Abbott Northwestern Hospital opened in 2006 and is in process of accreditation. Only 8% of all early childhood education programs across the country are currently accredited by NAEYC. In August of 2008 we integrated the children and employees from our smallest center in the Phillips Community Center into our other three locations due to leasing and building issues. The majority of the children and staff are now in new YWCA classrooms. Each of the YWCA's Children's Centers provides an interactive learning environment where children gain developmental assets to succeed in school. Activities for children include developing literacy and math skills, promoting social development with our anti-bias and conflict resolution curricula, and encouraging coordination, motor skills, and strength through games and other physical activity. Children in our care are developmentally assessed upon entry into the program and every six months thereafter. In order to effectively serve diverse, low-income children, the centers also attend to children's basic needs by providing nutritious breakfasts, lunches, and afternoon snacks that include foods from the cultures represented by the children. We believe that in order for a child to be able to grow to her/his greatest potential it is important for the family to be able to provide as much stability as possible. For low-income families this can be difficult when resources are limited and often there is a single parent overseeing the household. In addition to the daily education and support the children receive while they are in our care, we are committed to providing support to the parents and family through the work of our Family Service Coordinators. These important positions assist our families in staying self-sufficient. Achieving outstanding educational outcomes: Of children enrolled in the program for more than six months, 94% demonstrate age appropriate skills and developmental progress. Also, over 90% of YWCA pre-kindergarten children pass the MN Kindergarten readiness screening which significantly surpasses the state average of less than 60% of Minnesota children testing ready for school. These outcomes are extremely important for the low-income children we serve. Research shows that children who live in families with limited resources are more likely to start school behind their peers. The Children's Center at Abbott Northwestern Hospital: This center is a very special part of our Early Childhood Programs for it offers two types of programs for children and families. Half of the center provides high-quality early childhood education in the English language in a multi-cultural environment with the children in age specific classrooms The other half of the center provides language specific care in Spanish and Somali within four bungalows that imitate a home childcare environment where there is an age range of children. The bungalow teachers are childcare providers from immigrant cultures who are also learning how to run a home childcare center. They participate in a business development training program while caring for a group of children in their native language. In two to three years they will leave the center to start their own home childcare business in the community. (547 Children)	$4,431,339.00

Civil Rights, Social Action, Advocacy: Racial Justice and Public Policy: RACIAL JUSTICE Through public forums, community dialogues and unlearning racism and understanding privilege trainings, the Racial Justice department works towards the YWCA's mission of eliminating racism. The vision is for thousands of people in the community to come together in dialogues on race for the purpose of creating cultural understanding with one another. When individuals share their own stories, awareness is raised and communities are built. Community members become allies, activists, and friends working together for racial equality and understanding. In 2007, over 1,500 people participated in the following activities: Unlearning Racism Workshops: The YWCA recognizes that each individual is at a different point in their learning about racism and how to work against it. To facilitate this process, we offer Unlearning Racism workshops that included facilitated activities and discussion generating a frank exchange of opinions and feelings on race and the effects of white privilege. It's Time to Talk: Forums on Race (ITT): In 2007, the fifth community forum was attended by 1,100+ people from the arts, business, education, faith communities, government and community service. Programming included keynote speaker Paul La Roche and participation in a facilitated dialogue about race relations in small groups. Through this experience, people are motivated to continue the conversation by organizing Community Dialogues throughout the year. These smaller Community Dialogues are led by a YWCA trained volunteer facilitator and engage 6 to 12 people for 1-2 hours. In 2007, over 278 people engaged in Community Dialogues in workplaces, places of worship, homes or community centers. PUBLIC POLICY The YWCA's Public Policy work is based on the belief that everyone has a role to play in shaping public policy. Our work gives voice to thousands of constituents among our Children's Center families, program participants, members, staff, Board and committee members, and volunteers. We create ground-breaking, culturally competent advocacy strategies that mobilize people to become informed, register to vote, and take action to create change. Public Policy Platform: On an annual basis the YWCA Board adopts a public policy platform for which we advocate each year. The 2008 legislative priority is high quality, affordable early childhood education for all Minnesota children. Throughout the year the YWCA advocates for this agenda and educates and organizes program participants, members, and the public to take action. The YWCA is part of a 75+ member coalition that advocates for adequate funding for quality childcare in Minnesota. Legislative and Community Events: Staff actively work to engage YWCA members and program participants and the wider community in the political process by: * Introducing program participants - youth and adults - to the legislative process through participation in annual events at the capitol: Girls Rock the Capitol, Women's Action Day, and Voices for Children Advocacy Day. * Candidate forums and other opportunities for constituents to connect to political leaders * Registering voters at community events and during voter registration drives at YWCA facilities. Legislative Alerts provide program participants, members, and constituents with information about policy issues affecting their lives and how to take action. This bi-monthly public policy update is e-mailed to YWCA constituents and details implications, status, and sponsors of pending legislation and encourages readers to call and write legislators with their opinions. Legislative alerts can also be downloaded from our web site at www.ywcampis.org. Legislative Alerts are emailed to over 900 individuals. (1500 Participants)

Recreation, Sports, Leisure, Athletics: Health & Fitness - Our three health and fitness centers in Downtown, Uptown, and Midtown Minneapolis provide access in urban neighborhoods to a wide range of fitness activities to support our 20,000+ members in achieving personal success to strengthen the mind, body and spirit. The YWCA has never been about providing access only to those able to afford monthly membership fees, Health and Fitness scholarships provided access to affordable memberships for over 3100 youth, adults, and families in 2007. In addition, the 1500+ youth involved in our programs are automatically eligible for a youth membership to encourage positive and healthy activities. The YWCA also offers a nutrition and fitness program serving Latino and Native American Minneapolis youth and their families to address diabetes and obesity in these two urban communities. The Strong Fast Fit Youth program uses the power of family to address health disparities. Youth - with the support and involvement of their families - create life-long attitudes and behaviors to assist in achieving ideal weight and implementing a healthy lifestyle. Participants and their families gain access to nutrition education, support in designing and implementing a personal wellness plan, and access to YWCA facilities and regular fitness activities. By working with the family systems that nurture youth, long-term behavior change is more likely. In 2007, 169 youth and their family members were served. (20000 Members)

Youth Development: Girls & Youth - Seven programs serve youth in Minneapolis Public Schools promoting academic success, positive decision-making and leadership skills, and community involvement. All programs follow a youth development philosophy that accepts the needs and concerns of each young person without judgment and helps to build developmental assets. In 2007, the Girls & Youth programs served 1,578 Minneapolis youth ages 6-19; 68% were female, 58% were low-income, and 92% were youth of color. Programs operate year round, at school and community sites throughout the city. Each program has specific outcomes for its unique focus, however, all include weekly programming with additional field trips, summer programming, and "one-to-one" sessions as needed. During the School Year programming takes place during the school day as "pull-out" groups or as groups that meet after school during 26 weeks of the school year. Some programs operate one long 26 week session while others have two 13-week sessions - one beginning in September and one beginning in February. Special activities are also planned for school release days. During the Summer "summer sessions" are held for each program area for 8-10 weeks depending on the program. These mini-courses emphasize recreation using the YWCA's outstanding resources and offer staff an opportunity to further develop relationships with participants. Youth meet 4 days a week for 4 hours a day participating in program activities, recreational activities and field trips. Girls & Youth programs fall into two categories: 1. Connecting Youth to Learning programs seek to improve young people's school experience with an emphasis on improving academic and social skills. 2. Developing Skills for Life programs enrich the lives of youth with programming that develops interpersonal skills and a sense of mastery. 1) Connecting to Learning, Nurturing strong minds for success in school and beyond. The low on-time graduation rates and high drop out rates among youth of color and Native American youth in Minneapolis Public Schools presents our community with a huge challenge. At a time when more and more jobs require post-secondary education, success in school is key in creating an economically stable future for young people. The literature on effective after-school programs suggests that one of the key attributes is providing informal learning that is more applied in nature and more focused on each participant's social and emotional development. The programs identified in this area are called Connecting to Learning specifically to underscore the dual focus on academic success along with social and emotional development. YWCA Girls & Youth programs in this area are:

Asian Youth Tutoring Program: is a co-educational after-school tutoring program for Hmong students that helps participants improve their academic, social and leadership skills while strengthening their relationship to school. Participants are encouraged to use all aspects of program time to practice their English skills in a supportive, non-judgmental environment - both with the tutors and each other. Led entirely by young-adult Hmong staff, participants see that someone "just like me" can create a life that honors the best of both cultures. The program provides comprehensive after-school English Language tutoring incorporating homework help, cultural enrichment and social skills. YWCA Beacon After-School Program: in north Minneapolis is part of a national "beacon school movement" that seeks to create lasting collaborations between schools and community partners to provide quality after-school programming and turn schools in challenged neighborhoods into hubs of community activity. It is based on the successful Beacon initiative started in the New York City Public School system in 1991 to address the need for a coordinated approach to building comprehensive after-school programming for at-risk youth. The Beacon program takes place at Cityview Community School offering comprehensive after-school programming providing academic, recreational and cultural activities for children and families from low-income households. Each year, staff holds a retreat with the Beacon's Youth Advisory Council to determine the main program areas and themes for the year. Girl Power: is an after-school program that brings math and science out of the classroom and into the world in which today's girls live. Girls strengthen their academic skills, develop their economic literacy, and increase their awareness of non-traditional careers. Through hands-on activities of experimentation and analysis, the program embraces girls' interests and demystifies non-traditional career paths by connecting participants with women in these fields. 2) Skills for Life... Building strong character and discovering the power of community. Youth of color make up 70% of the Minneapolis schools student population. Students of color are not passing benchmark tests, are dropping out of school, and experience high rates of school suspension. Youth of color may exhibit behavior influenced by frustration with school, problems in the home, and the struggles that attend the high rates of poverty and experiences of racism in communities of color. In this context, making positive choices about behavior and future life plans are extremely difficult. Young people need opportunities to socialize and build trusting positive relationships with peers and adults, develop life skills, contribute to the larger society, belong to a group, and feel competent. Perhaps more than anything, youth need attention, nurturing, and adults to trust as they navigate through adolescence. YWCA Girls & Youth programs in this area are: ALL THAT: is a component of the Asian Youth Program that focuses specifically on conflict resolution and truancy reduction. Among staff work with participants in gender specific groups using group discussions, activities, and recreation to help youth understand the roots of their anger; start practicing positive ways to assert themselves with peers, family, and school staff; and strengthen their school involvement. It incorporates family outreach and individual counseling. The staff provide strong role modeling on how to live a bi-cultural life while working with the youth to improve anger management, promote understanding of all cultures and promote healthy life choices. Contact Plus: is a comprehensive co-educational sexual health program. In small group discussions, staff work with at-risk youth to explore their values and life goals while teaching basic facts about preventing pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STI's). In the last three years the program has implemented the creation of a sexual health plan for each youth participant, identifying personal goals and how a sexually transmitted infection or pregnancy would impact them. In this context, youth start to articulate for themselves the importance of delaying pregnancy and maintaining sexual health. Discovery Leadership: challenges girls to be the change they want to see in the world. In this intergenerational leadership program girls explore definitions of leadership in group discussions and experience leadership through community action projects they develop with women mentors. As they identify and engage in their action projects the girls develop their personal leadership style and learn how to change the world around them. Girls' Resolution and Prevention (RAP): is a restorative justice program that moves girls out of the criminal justice system permanently by building skills and motivation for positive life choices. It has two components: an intervention component working with court-mandated girls as an alternative sanction for a first time offense and a school-based prevention component working with girls identified as at-risk for involvement in criminal activity which includes a focus on truancy reduction. Youth meet one-on-one with the program staff to develop and implement monthly contracts tracking attendance and academic achievement and behavioral changes. More than 80% of graduates from the court-mandated component have no further offenses one year after completing the program. Using restorative justice practices the girls understand and take responsibility for their behavior and its impact on their community. In small group meetings the girls explore the role of anger in their lives. (1578 Youth)
